FROM THE PRIEST – SACRAMENTALS: HOLY WATER

We cannot consider the sacramentals without considering holy water. Its usage also seems to be from the beginnings of the Church. What we mean by “holy water” is water that has been blessed by a cleric according to the official ritual of the Church. While there are many different waters utilized by Catholics (I think in particular of Lourdes water obtained from the holy shrine in France), holy water is distinct in its blessing and usage. Holy water is used not only for our entry into church but also as an aid to the blessing of peoples and objects.

We are radically renewed as disciples of Jesus Christ through the sacrament of baptism, and the Church wants us to recall this sacrament in our daily life. The primary way we have of recalling our baptism in a physical manner is through the use of holy water. Have you ever asked yourself why it is that we dunk our fingers in a bowl and cross ourselves using water? It is a reminder of that fact that God has washed us clean in the blood of Christ through the waters of baptism. It also serves as a reminder of our continual need for purification from sin. Yet holy water is more than just a reminder; it is a useful aid in the sanctification of life.

The Church instructs her pastors to bless and distribute holy water not only for its sacramental remembrance, but also as a great tool to sanctify the world. Just as Christ sanctifies the waters of the world through his baptism, so too does holy water sanctify the things of the world. As water is the primary means of washing things, so too does holy water help to cleanse all that we have and use, along with cleansing us in a way. This is why items which are blessed are also sprinkled with holy water, as if the item were receiving baptism itself.

Holy water is also a great deterrent against our primary spiritual enemy: Satan and his legion of demons. The devil hates anything blessed and nothing more so that holy water which has been exorcised and blessed by a priest. St. Teresa of Avila wrote in her Autobiography:

I have found by experience that there is nothing from which the devils fly more quickly than from holy water. They also fly from the cross, but they return almost immediately. Certainly, the power of holy water must be great; for my part, my soul feels particular comfort in taking it, and very generally a refreshment and interior delight which I cannot express.

There is always holy water available in the container in the back of church. Take some home and sprinkle the house on occasion or use it as is intended. Continue to live in the grace of your baptism through the use of holy water, that God may continue to bless you every day.
