FROM THE PRIEST – THE EXALTATION OF THE CROSS

The intense emphasis of today's Gospel on the mutual mercy we ought to practice towards one another should remind us of the infinite mercy God has shown to us in forgiving our sins. However, this mercy came at a cost: the very life of Jesus Christ. It is only in the death of Jesus that we are able to once more have life in God. This is why the Church is so vehement in its display and even adoration of the means whereby Jesus died: the wood of the Cross.

Monday, September 14, is the feast of the Exultation of the Cross. This feast was introduced in the early centuries to commemorate the rediscovery of the true Cross by St. Helena in the fourth century, after it had been buried to avoid desecration or loss. Many non-Christians see this as a rather morbid practice. "Would you venerate an electric chair if Jesus died that way?" they will ask mockingly. In part, the answer would be yes, yet there are a few particular reasons that we venerate the Cross.

We first venerate the Cross because it is the particular means chosen as the altar of sacrifice by Jesus. The Cross is literally sanctified because of the Precious Blood spilled upon it, the blood which "speaks more eloquently than Abel's" (Heb 12:24) in overcoming the bonds of sin so that we may be free to love and worship God. It is the holiest item on the planet because by Jesus' salvific action on the Cross we are remade as sons of God and children of light (Eph 5:8). The only thing that is venerated and adored on a higher level than the Cross is the Most Holy Eucharist.

We exalt the Cross because it also shows the full triumph of God over all our enemies. Victors would traditionally march in triumphs and demonstrate not only their weapons and armies, but also the spoils of war. We Christians hold high the Cross because it is the means whereby the King of Kings fought and defeated the enemies of man: sin, Satan, and death. In obtaining this victory through the "weak" means of the suffering and death of the Cross, Jesus demonstrates the true power and wisdom of God (see 1 Cor. 1:20-24).

"Let us ever glory in the Cross of Christ," as the hymn goes. Let us constantly look to the Cross to find our consolation and our strength in times of trouble or tribulation. Let us display the Cross to confound the wisdom of this world that seeks strength over mercy. But let us demonstrate the power of the Cross in the forgiveness and mercy we share with one another. It is only if we begin to forgive as we have been forgiven that we can then glory in the Cross here and now, so that we may be worth to rejoice in the fruits of the Cross for all eternity.
